Paul/ David.

These suicide reports seem to be appearing too often for comfort. Would it be possible to do identify through meta analysis the incidence of suicide/ homicide when patients have been on Paxil vs. general population vs. patients on other antidepressants vs..depressed patients in general?

This is potentially an area in which competitors are likely to capitalise on once the lawyers have finished their work in the courts. It would therefore be prudent to have a publication ready.

What are your thoughts?

Regards,

Bonaventure
