Charley Flicker just faxed to me some data from the citalopram pediatric efficacy study. While I can't tell if this is intent to treat or observed cases, citalopram is significantly different from placebo ($p < .05$) at all time points on the CDRS-R, the primary efficacy measure. Discontinuation from the study due to AEs was no different between placebo (5.9%) and citalopram (5.6%).

Please note that as of June 25, 2001, we have a new mailing address.
